

ABSTRACT

A process of preparing solid form of an extract of a raw material, obtained by subjecting the raw material to extraction utilizing a heating, extracting and condensing system, and contacting the resulting liquid extract with an absorbent material or a food, and drying the wetted absorbent material or food such as by freeze drying.